Since its first appearance in 1990, the Journal of Democracy has established itself as a leading voice in discussions of the problems and prospects of democracy around the world. The Journal explores in depth every aspect of the establishment, consolidation, and maintenance of democracy, including political institutions, parties and elections, civil society, ethnic conflict, economic reform, public opinion, the role of the media, federalism, and constitutionalism. It covers not only practical political matters but also questions of democratic theory and culture.

In addition to publishing articles on every inhabited region of the world, the Journal features reviews of important books on democracy, reports on recent elections, excerpts from speeches by leading democrats and democratic dissidents, and news about the activities of pro-democracy groups worldwide. The Journal’s authors include eminent social scientists and historians, statesmen and leaders of democratic movements, and renowned intellectuals. While maintaining the highest scholarly standards, it is written and edited for the general reader as well. A truly global publication, the Journal attracts both authors and readers from all over the world.

In 2006, the Journal discussed the prospects of democracy in the Arab world (with Oussama Safa, Barry Rubin, Steven Cook, and Mark Tessler, Mansoor Moaddel, & Ronald Inglehart—January); examined the diversity of electoral systems worldwide (with Adeed Dawisha, Larry Diamond, Andrew Reynolds, Jih-wen Lin, and Richard Soudriette and Andrew Ellis—April); addressed the reform of intelligence communities in democratizing countries (with Steven C. Boraz and Thomas C. Bruneau, Mikhail Tsyypkin, Kenneth R. Dombroski, and Steven E. Phillips—July); and analyzed the political implications of Latin America’s many recent elections (with Hector E. Schamis, Eduardo Posada-Carbó, Arturo Valenzuela and Lucia Dammert, Cynthia McClintock, Matthew Cleary, and Christopher Sabatini & Eric Farnsworth—October). The issues of 2006 also included an article on the relation between strong legislatures and democratic consolidation by M. Steven Fish (January); an examination of identity, immigration, and democracy by Francis Fukuyama (April); assessments of the Hamas victory in the Palestinian parliamentary elections by Khalil Shikaki and Riad Malki (July); and a study of the spread and influence of constitutional courts by Donald L. Horowitz (October).
